Arms Trade Treaty-Baseline Assessment Project (ATT-BAP)

The Arms Trade Treaty-Baseline Assessment Project (ATT-BAP) is an initiative developed by Rachel Stohl, Stimson and Paul Holtom, SIPRI. With your input, the ATT-BAP will help to ensure the future success of the ATT in the following ways:

- Give clear guidance on the obligations contained in the ATT for States Parties;
- Increase understanding of measures that can be taken to ensure that states are in a position to ratify the ATT and ensure effective implementation of the Treaty;
- Contribute towards targeted and coordinated international assistance, by providing information to help avoid duplication and ensure that scarce resources are utilized most effectively;
- Deliver a baseline assessment of UN Member States' ability to effectively implement the ATT; and
- Provide indicators for future measurement of the Treaty's impact.

ATT-BAP has developed an ATT Baseline Assessment Survey for States to assist them in understanding the obligations contained in the ATT. It is expected that by completing the Survey States will be able to clearly identify:

- What a State already does to implement the Treaty;
- What a State needs to do to implement the Treaty; and
- What type of assistance a State requires to implement the Treaty.

The ATT-BAP will provide the information contained in every completed ATT Baseline Survey in an online database that will be accessible on the ATT-BAP website (<http://www.armstrade.info/>) in June 2014. This information will assist States, the United Nations, regional organizations, and civil society organizations as they develop implementation projects and programs for capacity-building, legal and legislative assistance, and other measures to effectively implement the ATT.
